Consultants: port won't need to expand into Southport area

■ Unions disagree, saying more maritime development must be pursued

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

The West Sacramento Planning Commission on Thursday got a look at four different scenarios for future development of the Port of Sacramento's real estate holdings in West Sacramento.

But representatives from the port's unions expressed their displeasure at a common theme among the four scenarios: none of the prospective plans showed much industrial growth in its southern lands. That Southport land includes 440-acres long seen by the port as crucial to an expanded shipping mission at the port.

On the other hand, three of the land use scenarios showed preservation of the port's current shipping operations – which have been bleeding money in recent years.

Jerry Goldberg, one of several representatives from land use consultant Parsons, Brinckerhoff, Quade and Douglas (abbreviated as "PB"), was among thes peakers who addressed the planning commission. He said that many participants in the port land use workshops had "in no uncertain terms told us that the viability of the port's maritime uses were important to a number of people."

"The port and whatever goes south of the channel," he added, "have to be compatible, and really have to go together."

But he also told the port a real estate consultant had determined that designating a lot of the southern land as "industrial" would be a bad idea in terms of marketing it and raising short-term money for the cash-strapped port.

"Their conclusion was that the most 'available' market is the residential market," he said. "In order for the port to get top dollar for the land, there was the sense that the 440 acres should be master-planned. . . Industrial along the waterfront would reduce the value of the rest of it. The industrial uses are a detriment on the southern side," said Goldberg.

Mike Luken of the West Sacramento Redevelopment Agency echoed the suggestion that industrial zoning could be a drain on the future of the port's southern land.

"The industrial and maritime uses are not just hampered in the short term, but they're hampered on a long-term basis," said Luken. "That land is at a competitive disadvantage to other land (in the Sacramento region) that has access to the freeway."

Land use scenarios included the possibility of high-density waterfront housing within view of the piers across the channel, the consultants suggested. Also a common theme among the scenarios was the suggestion of a "community center" such as a plaza along the southern waterfront.

A port labor union leader gave a spirited rebuttal to the planners' downplaying of industrial uses.

The scenarios up for study, said Agustin Ramirez of the Port of Sacramento Labor Alliance, were "supposed to consider the two extremes, one of which was a total port and one of which is 'no port.' But (the totally maritime land use plan) is not one of these."

Ramirez argued that using port real estate for non-maritime purposes was "narrow vision, narrow minded, tunnel vision." In 20, 30 or 40 years, he said, an expanded port in West Sacramento could be sorely needed.

'Industrial uses are a detriment on the southern side.'
-- Land use consultant

'(That's) narrow vision, narrow-minded, tunnel vision.'
-- Port union leader

West Sacramento's Everett Burdan, a member of the longshoremen's and warehousemen's union, also spoke out against plans to limit the port's future as a shipper.

"Land value is one thing, but the value of having good-wage jobs is real, too. And getting trucks off the road (by using ships) is good, too. This study is very short-sighted. . . the study needs to be done on a more reasonable basis."

The consultant, PB, had reported a strong conviction that the Port of Sacramento had enough land available at its existing terminals and near them on the north shore of the channel to handle any needed future maritime growth.

PB is now soliciting comments from the local governments who control the port, and splicing together a "preferred alternative" for the Port of Sacramento's real estate development.

Practice makes perfect

Regional fire departments, including the local one, have taken advantage of doomed buildings on two city-owned properties. The buildings are slated for demolition, but have been enlisted to perform one last public service before they go: controlled fires and other challenges have been created at the two sites during the past couple of weeks, forming a hands-on campus of sorts for firefighters.

The first site, the former Siesta Inn on West Capitol Avenue west of Jefferson, has just finished serving that purpose.

"It was burned in small room-by-room fires, just in the interior of the rooms," said Division Chief Jim Medich of the West Sacramento Fire Department. Firefighters from Medich's department, as well as Sacramento, Dixon, Davis, UC Davis and the Rumsey Rancheria casino department were among those on scene to practice working with those fires.

"What was done at the motel site was live fire, interior fire training, including rescues."

The motel is now demolished.

Meanwhile, training still continues at a city-owned building near the local library branch on Merkley Avenue, west of Jefferson. That property, said Medich, has been set up to help firefighters brush up on three different sets of skills.

An SCBA (Self-Contained Breathing Apparatus) course is a "confidence course, teaching firefighters to disentangle themselves from electric wires, phone wires suspended from the ceiling or ceiling suspension wiring." With limited visibility such as in a smoky building, he said, firefighters are expected to practice removing themselves from a "web" of entrapments. The course also gives firefighters a chance to practice maneuvering through a small pipe. And they practice moving through an interior wall:

"You have to get yourself through a limited opening, such as between wall studs. You leave your mask on, but take your air bottle off, send it through the studs first, and then go through yourself."

Also going on at the Merkley building is a practice course for doing a "large area search" in dark, smokey conditions.

"In order to search a large area, such as a bar, nightclub, high school gymnasium or big office area, we handle it differently from searching a house. The goal is to quickly search every square foot, and to not lose any firefighters. You use ropes, and clip off (from a central area), with each firefighter going a different way, using a tool like an ax to make a sweeping motion to contact a person who might be unconscious. Then you return to the center following the rope."

The department is also practicing the use of new "thermal imaging equipment" which can see in the dark, locating heat from either a fire or a person.

"We have also found pets that way," said Medich.

Use of the Merkley site comes to a finale this weekend when the building is scheduled to be burned down.

FIREFIGHTER STEVE BINNS in action at the former Siesta Inn. The building is one of two sites recently used by local fire agencies in a kind of creative destruction: slated for demolition, the buildings were burned and otherwise abused to provide firefighters with a realistic training ground.

WUSD trades land, pays $200,000/acre

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

An official from West Sacramento's school district provided more information on a land deal now in escrow that will provide the district with enough land to build a planned new city high school.

The Washington Unified School District will gain 42.34 acres southeast of Linden Road and Jefferson Boulevard from American Property Development, and will in turn give the company 10.29 acres of district acreage adjacent to the company's housing project near Jefferson and Devon Road. The district will also pay the company an amount equal to $200,000 per acre for the difference in acres involved in the trade – an amount totaling about $6.4 million.

The developer's land was actually valued higher, but American Property Development (in a move typically done for tax reasons) is donating back to the district $404,000 to bring the cash difference down to $200,000 per acre.

The developer's property is being purchased for the same per-acre amount the district paid for the adjacent Iwasaki property at the school site, although the American Property Development was zoned for less-intensive development than was the Iwasaki property. Zoning information on the 10 acres which the district traded to the developer wasn't immediately available.

The new property joins the former Iwasaki land to create a potential school site of more than 90 acres.

In early 2004, local voters approved a $52 million bond to build a new high school. The planned new school is expected to replace River City High School, which could be converted to a second middle school for the city.

Promoting foster care —

Most of the employees at West Sacramento's Safeway Store – about 80 percent of them – agreed to have their pay docked in 2004 to raise money to fight child abuse and promote foster family recruitment.

After-school attack: 'random' victims of gang

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

Local police have pieced together some more information about the Jan. 14 attack on two River City High School students near the campus. In that after-school incident, the youths were chased and attacked by a large number of suspects who had arrived in three separate cars. One of the victims is recovering from serious knife injuries, and the other from less serious injuries.

West Sacramento Police Sergeant Ray Bombardier said yesterday that the attack seemed to be gang-related, although the victims "were not gang-bangers" and were "chosen at random."

"There were three carloads with five or six people in each," he explained. "They came out of the Valley Hi area (in southern Sacramento County). What we learned is that there have been a couple of fights in West Sacramento in the past couple of months, involving a new little gang in Sacramento and a new little gang in West Sacramento."

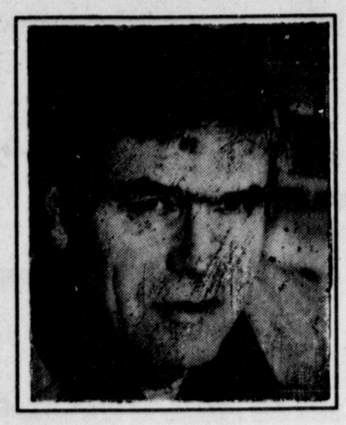

"The guys in Sacramento came over here in retaliation, and picked (the victims) at random. The kids they picked were not gang-bangers."

Police are following some leads on the suspects, he added, but arrests have not yet been made.

Why is it so hard to tell a dad you love him?

Note: My dad is having his 84th birthday this week and below is a column I wrote about him many birthdays ago.

My Back Pages

By Daryl Fisher

I wonder why it is that so many of us have such great difficulty telling those closest to us that we love them? And why is it that fathers and sons seem to run into this particular problem with more regularity than just about anyone else?

With my father scheduled for another birthday this weekend, I was talking to a friend the other night about these and other important questions and he happened to mention that he had what he considered to be a pretty typical relationship with his father.

"We talk about the weather, fishing, how the Giants are doing, stuff like that," he said.

"Nothing more serious?" I asked.

"Naw," he answered. "The last time I had a real deep talk with my dad I was a teenager and he was trying to explain the birds and the bees to me. That conversation went so bad we both more or less agreed not to talk about anything too serious ever again."

The next morning, I received a telephone call from my friend and he said, "Daryl, I think I gotta solution to your problem."

"What problem is that?" I asked, not exactly sure what he was talking about.

"You know, the one you have with your dad."

"But I don't have a problem with my dad," I assured my friend. "It's just that I wish we...."

"Look," he interrupted, "I tell you what, this year, instead of sending your dad another one of those happy birthday cards that your wife picks out for him, why don't you get brave and tell him you love him, and do it in writing, you know, in that newspaper column you write."

"Are you kidding?" I asked. "My father would die if I did that. And I would die if I did that."

"I'll tell you what," he said, "if you fess up to the way you feel about your dad, come my father's birthday, I'll call him and do the same thing."

"Oh no you won't!" I said. "I know you better than that. Either you or your dad are going to have to be at death's door before one of you lets on that you even like each other."

There was a lengthy pause, then a deep, throaty laugh. "You're right," finally said my friend, "but I bet I've talked you into writing that column, haven't I?"

My father is retired now, but for almost 40 years he worked at the old Southern Pacific Railroad shops in downtown Sacramento. As a kid, I was never really exactly sure what he did there, but it had something to do with fixing big train locomotives, and I was pretty sure it was probably one of the best jobs in the whole world.

He would leave for work a lot earlier than I left for school, and he came home late in the afternoon, tired and not very talkative. He'd eat dinner, usually watch one TV show (Sergeant Bilko, the Jackie Gleason and Ed Sullivan shows were among his favorites) and then go to bed early because he had to be up at the crack of dawn to go back to work again. His job was important to him and he rarely missed a day's work, maybe seven or eight in all those 40 years.

The days fathers and sons spend together have a tendency to blend into each other, but there are always a few moments which stand out. Like the time he took me to see the Sacramento Solons play the Portland Beavers at old Edmonds Field, which is now nothing more than a chain store parking lot at 10th and Broadway in downtown Sacramento. Although those two teams and the field of dreams they played on no longer exist, to this day, I have never seen a more thrilling baseball game. It was a masterful extra innings pitchers' duel, with neither team able to score a run until Harry Bright (my favorite player) finally hit a long home run over the left field fence with two men out in the bottom of the 12th inning to win the game for the Solons.

My father isn't a big baseball fan and I'm sure he had taken me to the game more as a favor to me than anything else. As he and I and a handful of loyal Solon fans filed out of the stadium, I asked him if he had ever seen such an exciting game.

"I'm glad you enjoyed it," he said, yawning because he was up way past his bedtime, "but exciting? We sat there for five hours and they scored one damn run. Now what the hell is exciting about that?"

So, like most fathers and sons, my dad and I haven't spent all of our days together on the same page, but he's always been there when I needed him, made sure I had everything the other kids had, and hugged me tighter than anyone else when I left for Vietnam.

So, Happy Birthday, Dad! I love you, and I just wanted to mention it, "in the living years".

Relax...
and let me sell or find a home for you.

How about those 'great' loans in those mortgage ads?

DRE Lic. #01010462
David Trussell

Have you noticed the amount of mortgage loan advertising lately?

Maybe because I've been in the industry for over 15 years and have been through many of these real estate cycles, my antennae perk up when I hear lenders on the radio or TV. Some are very creative, and make it sound like they have the best loan product since applie pie, with the "lowest fees in town."

But have you tried to listen to the end of the message to decipher what their "disclosure" is saying? I have, and many times I can't follow along with the disclosure. Are they talking about a loan for a purchase, a challenged-credit borrower, a refi, cash out, rate reduction refi, 80 percent, 90 percent? What are they selling, really? If you call, will they "bait-and-switch" you to another loan?

Let me tell you a secret. There are many lenders. But any broker in the greater Sacramento area has access to the same loans. If you hear a loan ad on the radio or TV, the odds are that they are talking about a loan that we have access to. Some of their loans, though, I must admit, are so creative we just won't do them or can't compete with them.

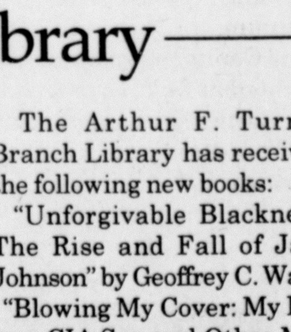

Here at the Mortgage Consultants Group, we also do a lot of marketing, mostly by mail and radio. But first we listen to YOUR needs, and then we mold a loan around that. We don't believe in offering a loan that's not in your best interest, just because it's trendy. We're in business to have clients for life, which means listening to customers and then doing a great job, cheap.

Here's my offer to you: if you hear a mortgage advertisement, call me so I can tell you all the pros and cons. I won't say I can beat them or their rates -- I'll just give you an honest education about what you just heard. You'll probably hear something that wasn't explained before.

The Final Paperwork

The stacks of papers you sign when buying a house can leave you confused. You'll be asked to sign countless documents filled with "legalese." Some buyers barely glance at them while others get frustrated trying to read every form.

You should try to understand the papers you sign. If you're getting a loan, most of the paperwork comes from the mortgage company and arrives shortly before closing begins, so there's little time in advance to read them. But most of the documents use standardized language and you should be able to get copies in advance from the lender, so you can have your questions answered and get comfortable with the settlement process.

Save on heating —

From Pacific Gas & Electric Co.

After this year began with a series of successive winter storms in northern and central California, meteorologists predict a return to a drier, yet colder weather pattern for the next week or more. As customers use their heaters to combat the dropping mercury, Pacific Gas and Electric Company wants to provide a reminder about safe home heating practices.

Doing a simple, ten minute check of a furnace can reduce the likelihood of serious danger from a malfunctioning system. Damaged or worn furnaces can emit lethal quantities of carbon monoxide, an odorless and colorless gas which can cause sickness or even death.

Ten Point Furnace Safety Check:

Look for cracked, rusted, misaligned or clogged vents.

Inspect for soot in the burning area and vents – this can be an indication that .the gas burner is not properly adjusted and requires servicing.

Clean all dust and lint near the burning chamber. Please ensure that the thermostat is in the off position prior to cleaning.

Check your flue assembly for alignment and rigidity; a small earthquake is all it takes to loosen the flue to allow the products of combustion into your home.

Make sure the flame is blue – a yellow flame may be a sign that the burner could be out of adjustment.

Securely fasten the door that covers the pilot light and burner area.

Do not store or use combustible materials or liquids near any gas appliance.

Clean or replace your furnace filter and make sure the blower door is properly secured.

Check ducts for leaks and have them properly insulated.

Look for cracked or frayed blower belts.

The use of open fires indoors to stay warm and save money can be deadly because burning wood and charcoal also releases carbon monoxide.

Please take note of the following heating safety tips:
Never use barbecues or charcoal inside your home, even in the fireplace.

Never heat your home with a kerosene heater, gas range or other unvented appliances.

Don't burn treated or painted wood in your fireplace.

Be sure to keep combustible materials such as bedding, clothing, draperies, rugs and furniture a safe distance from heating appliances. Remember to turn them off when you leave the room for an extended period.

Damaged or poorly functioning natural gas equipment can not only waste money by leaking or burning gas inefficiently, but can also produce excess amounts of carbon monoxide if not adjusted properly.

For a free safety inspection, please call PG&E at 1-800-743-5000. Some of the appliances that PG&E inspects include:

Furnaces
Water heaters
Gas fireplaces
Ovens
Ranges
Hot tubs / pool heaters
Clothes dryers

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF ANNETTE NANCY WINDHAM
CASE NUMBER 05PR 00056

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of Annette Nancy Windham:

A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by Martin L. Rogers in the Superior Court of California, County of Sacramento.

THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that Martin L. Rogers be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held on Feb. 18, 2005, at 9 a.m. in Dept. 129, Superior Court of California, County of Sacramento, 3341 Power Inn Road, Sacramento CA 95826, Branch Name: Probate.

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the deceased, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in Probate Code section 9100. The time for filing claims will not expire before four months from the hearing date noticed above.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a "Request for Special Notice" (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A "Request for Special Notice" form is available from the court clerk.

OPINION

Letters to the Editor

Build it, already

I am writing to ask the parents of West Sacramento to attend a special meeting of the school board on February 1, 2005. This meeting will be at 6:30 at River City High School. The subject of the meeting will be the progress of the new high school. I went to the school board meeting on January 13th and asked the school board what the timeline was with for the new high school and was never given an answer. The superintendent told me that there would be a meeting on February 1st to let the public know the progress. I got the impression from his response that things are not going as we all thought. I have served on many of the different committees over the past two years that have helped in setting up the plan and structure of the new high school. At the end of the last school year we were on schedule and had accomplished quite a lot in one year. At the beginning of this school year, and even into November and December, we were on track also. The word has been that there were just a few things to tie up with the land purchase. It has occurred to me that someone has changed the plan. Why do we have to have a special meeting to discuss the progress?

I worked very hard to get Measure Q passed. I have served on several committees with the idea that my son wouldn't have to go out of this city for high school. I have many dedicated friends that have 12-year olds who did the same. We all worked on these committees thinking that maybe this would be the beginning of something great for our city. We are bringing people into out city with the promise of a new school. Who is going to tell them that we need to recreate the wheel every time we want to make any progress in our school district? Yes, we do want to do the "right thing" as Mr. Farmer stated at the last school board meeting, but we need to get started. Why are we making changes to the plans at this late date? What is so complicated about using the plan that Rosemont High School used? We hired the same architects. Make a few modifications and get on with it. The idea that we know what the needs are going to be in 50 years is ridiculous. What about what we need in 50 weeks? We are outgrowing our current high school by leaps and bounds. To prolong this process by one year is going to have a major effect on attendance and just prolong the notion that if you want to live in a town with an up-to-date high school, move to Elk Grove or Folsom.

Dismayed by Daryl Fisher's column

I read, with some dismay, Daryl Fisher's "My Back Pages" column of the 19th of January and concluded that his pal, "Newt", may be on to something. I, too, have noticed for years the occasionally expressed, however far too prevalent, defeatist attitude of not only Vietnam War veterans, but by some of the Korean Police Action vets as well. (By the way, a state of war, replete with an uneasy truce, still exists between the Peoples Republic of North Korea and ourselves.) They seem to have a certain forgetfulness of us going to the U.N. with evidence from many different world intelligence services for 14 months. That delay caused an overlong build up time frame during which who knows what may have been buried in the desert sands of complicit neighboring countries, as their Mig jets were just before "Gulf 1" which had only a six month build up. One almost has to return to the World War II veterans in order to find generational memories of an American truly victorious in war.

Wars are never simple, clean or orderly; they are, in fact, complex, dirty and messy. The rules are set by the aggressor, not the aggressed, unless the aggressed willingly ties one hand behind their backs. That is stupid and quite possibly fatal. You go with the intelligence you have at the time; not the intelligence you have after the fact. "What did he know, and when did he know it?", was a question asked about F.D.R. as well, regarding Pearl Harbor. Long after, not during the war. In fact, as I remember it, F.D.R. was already dead.

If I may be direct: To all of you who chose to live (and die) by the Jihad and need to act on your aggression and religious bigotry, that is your right. As the aggressed, our right and duty is to ensure that you do so at a place and time of our choosing, not yours.

Jefferson Boulevard suggestions

I'm not sure if anyone else has noticed, or should I say seen it at night, but the colorful mural that faces Jefferson Boulevard is almost invisible at night. The lights that have been placed at the opposite ends of the artwork at best cover only the edges. The rest of the art work is barely visible to motorists passing by. The only way one is able to see it at night is if you drive by slow enough and on the side of the road nearest to it. I wonder if this is going to remain in its present state or is the builder going to fix this simple problem.

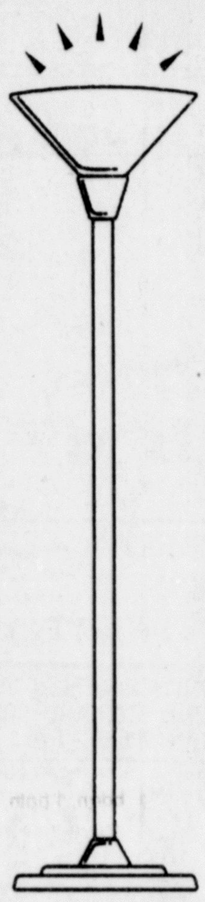

On a separate and more important issue is road safety. With all the construction going on at Jefferson Boulevard as a result of the road expansion project, which I may add is long overdue, lighting of the boulevard is of great concern not only to motorists but bicyclists and pedestrians alike. Visibility at night is poor. Compound that with rain or fog and you have very hazardous conditions. As a temporary fix how about putting road reflectors or better yet temporary lighting? If doing this is too costly then how about providing temporary lighting at all intersections along the boulevard? At the very least will prevent anyone from going into a ditch, natural or otherwise.

Oscar Picks

The Oscar field is wide open this year. It wasn't a stellar year for movies in 2004, and there isn't a single film like last year's juggernaut "The Lord of the Rings: The Return of the King" to gobble up all the nominations and trophies.

Although the nominations for the Academy Awards have yet to be announced as of this writing, here are my picks for who I think should get the nod from the Academy and take home Oscar this year.

BEST ACTOR: Leonardo DiCaprio for his portrayal of Howard Hughes in Martin Scorsese's "The Aviator." DiCaprio has been overlooked by the Academy for too long, and he consistently delivers great performances. I think this will be his year. Runner Up: Jamie Foxx, for his turn as Ray Charles in "Ray."

BEST ACTRESS: Kate Winslet for "Eternal Sunshine of the Spotless Mind." Like DiCaprio, Winslet has never taken home the Oscar, even though she's been nominated three times. Runner Up: Julia Roberts for her performance in "Closer."

BEST SUPPORTING ACTOR: Jamie Foxx, for his role as the cabbie taken hostage by Tom Cruise in "Collateral." Runner Up: David Carradine's performance in "Kill Bill Vol. 2."

BEST SUPPORTING ACTRESS: Natalie Portman in "Closer." Traditionally, the Best Supporting Actress Oscar goes to the hottest-looking starlet. Consider these past winners: Mira Sorvino, Kim Basinger, Angelina Jolie, Jennifer Connelly, Catherine Zeta-Jones ... . You get the picture. Runner Up: Cloris Leachman for "Spanglish." True, Cloris hasn't been hot for several centuries, but there's another rule for the Supporting Actress category: If it doesn't go to a hot starlet, then the award usually gets tossed to an aging actress who gives a brilliant character performance.

Jamie Foxx as Ray Charles

BEST ANIMATED FEATURE: "The Incredibles" should win, even though I think the Academy will give it to "Shrek 2." Runner Up: "Team America: World Police."

BEST DIRECTOR/BEST PICTURE: Traditionally, if a film wins the Best Director category it also takes home Best Picture. My pick: Martin Scorsese for "The Aviator," which should also take home the Oscar for Best Picture. Runner Up: "Closer," directed by Mike Nichols.

CELEBRITY extra

by Evelyn Green

Q: I heard (last year) that Brad Pitt and Jennifer Aniston were planning to do a movie together in Paris, and that one of the actors could be from the cast of "Friends." Has there been any word on when that would happen? — Rosanne H.

A: Your letter arrived before the couple announced their separation in early January. That project, which most insiders say never really got started, will probably be shelved, if not actually canceled.

Q: Please settle a friendly disagreement between me and a cousin. She says Justin Timberlake was once engaged to Keri Russell (ex-"Felicity"). I've followed Justin's career pretty closely, and I never heard that this happened. We're both waiting to read what you have to say. — Terri N.

A: I could find no romantic relationship between Timberlake and Ms. Russell. However, the two of them were in the cast of Season 6 of the Mickey Mouse Club. Russell was on the show from Seasons 3 to 6; Timberlake for Seasons 6 and 7, when Britney Spears was also doing the Mouseketeer thing.

Q: Did Canadian-born actor David James Elliot, who stars on the CBS series "JAG," ever become an American citizen? I understand he had planned to do so, but was talked out of it by his family in Canada. My interest comes from the fact that I hold dual Canadian and American citizenship. — Jeanine L.

David James Elliot

A: To Jeanine L: Both David James Elliot and his wife, Nanci Chambers, became U.S. citizens several years ago.

A: To Dan: Catherine Bell spoke in Farsi, the language used in Iran (Persia) for several thousand years. Farsi is also spoken in some form in parts of Afghanistan and in the Persian Gulf states (Bahrain, etc.). Bell's fluency in Farsi comes from the fact that she learned it as a child from her Iranian-born mother.

Q: Is it true that one of President George W. Bush's twin daughters worked as a model? And if so, did she do it with the family's approval? — Candace M.

A: Neither Jenna nor Barbara Bush — the twin daughters of President and Mrs. Laura Bush — worked as models. You may be thinking of their cousin, Lauren Bush, who is the daughter of the president's brother, Neil Bush. Lauren, incidentally, was once voted the Sexiest Vegetarian Alive and has been lauded for her efforts to push for improved humane treatment for animals.

THE CHOPPING BLOCK
by Philomena Corradeno

GRAPEFRUIT ISN'T JUST FOR BREAKFAST

Grapefruit isn't just a "morning fruit," although there was a time when it was a must for a fancy breakfast or brunch. And to make a big impression it sometimes was briefly broiled and maybe topped with toasted nuts or coconut.

But grapefruit needs no embellishment, especially when it's a rosy red, juicy one. It can be enjoyed at any meal, on its own or as an ingredient or as an accompaniment to meat, poultry or fish, or in a salad. And, it can be a healthful between-meals snack. Peel and section some and leave them around for the kids' after-school snack. They'll love the sweet rosy reds.

Southern Texas is a prime growing area for red grapefruit sold under the trademarked names, Ruby-Sweet and Rio Star.

Here are two recipes to get you acquainted with red grapefruit in cuisine, and in no time you'll find yourself discovering other ways to enjoy them.

ROAST CHICKEN WITH CARMELIZED TEXAS RED GRAPEFRUIT

- 3 to 3 1/2 pound chicken, cut in half lengthwise
- Salt and pepper, to taste
- 1/4 cup oil
- 2 large, sweet onions, cut into 1-inch pieces
- 2 Texas Rio Star Red Grapefruit, peeled and sectioned
- 1 cup white wine
- 1/2 cup brown sugar

- 1/3 cup Texas Rio Star Red Grapefruit juice
- 1/4 cup chopped fresh parsley
- 3 cloves garlic, minced

Sprinkle chicken with salt and pepper. In large skillet, heat oil. Cook chicken halves, one at a time, on medium-high heat, skin-side down, about 4 minutes or until browned. Turn chicken and brown underside.

Place chicken in shallow roasting pan. Add onions and grapefruit. Combine wine, brown sugar, grapefruit juice, parsley and garlic. Pour over chicken. Bake 3 minutes or until chicken is done. Makes 4 servings.

TEXAS CITRUS SALSA

- 1 Texas Red grapefruit, peeled
- 1 large Texas orange, peeled
- 1 cup diced green and yellow bell pepper
- 1 jalapeño pepper, seeded and minced
- 3 tablespoons chopped red onion
- 1 tablespoon chopped fresh cilantro
- 1 1/2 teaspoons sugar
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1 medium tomato

Section and chop grapefruit and orange.

In medium mixing bowl combine grapefruit, orange, bell peppers, jalapeño, red onion, cilantro, sugar and salt. Seed and chop tomato, gently add to mixture. Drain juice before serving. Serve with grilled fish or chicken. Makes about 2 cups.

The Runes of the Earth (The Last Chronicles of Thomas Covenant, Book One)
by Stephen R. Donaldson
(Putnam Publishing Group, $26.95)
Reviewed by Chris Richcreek

Thomas Covenant is back!

Well, sort of.

Stephen R. Donaldson's anti-hero, the focus of two trilogies about his adventures in a mythical place called the Land, is now part of a four-book finale subtitled "The Last Chronicles of Thomas Covenant."

There's only one problem — Covenant's dead.

At the end of the second trilogy, he died both in the "real world" and in the Land, giving up his life to defeat Lord Foul's attempt to break the Arch of Time using Covenant's white-gold wedding ring, which in the Land is the conduit for unleashing wild magic.

So, how can a dead guy get not three, but four more books? For starters, he has a partner.

Doctor Linden Avery, who helped heal the Land from Lord Foul's depredations in the second trilogy, is the centerpiece of "The Runes of the Earth." She is drawn back to the Land when her adopted son, Jeremiah, is kidnapped by Roger Covenant, the deranged son of Thomas Covenant. However, much has changed since Avery was last there, because 10 years in her time equals thousands of years in the Land. What hasn't changed is that Lord Foul is once again on the loose, and Thomas Covenant is somewhere in the mix as well.

Donaldson's best work has revolved around Thomas Covenant, and "The Runes of the Earth" skillfully sets the stage for the final installments in the Covenant series.

In an essay for Amazon.com, Donaldson said he waited until he was a better writer before tackling the last chronicles (the end of the second chronicles was published in 1983). For Thomas Covenant fans, the wait has been long but worth it, and the next book in the series can't come soon enough.

Books reviewed in this column are available at your local bookstore.

The employees collected $1,311 through their campaign, which they presented as a check to the Yolo County Children's Alliance and Child Abuse Prevention Council on Jan. 14 at the store.

"Our employees selected the Children's Alliance as the recipient of our local 'Making a Difference' campaign because they want to help area foster children," said Safeway Manager Dan Regan in a press release. "More than half of the Yolo County foster children come from West Sacramento, but we only have six licensed foster homes in this area. That means that several of these children have had to move to homes in other cities and counties, change schools (and) make new friends."

Safeway's employees, said Regan, wanted to help "spread the word that foster homes are needed right here in West Sacramento."

The Children's Alliance will use the funds during foster parent recruitment efforts in May.

From July of 2003 to May 0f 2004, a total of 108 West Sacramento children were placed into protective custody, but only one home was available in West Sacramento, said Diana Williams, assistant director of Child Welfare Services of Yolo County.

As of January 6, 39 West Sacramento kids were in foster care.

OUR LADY OF GUADALUPE FESTIVAL NEXT SUNDAY IN CATHOLIC CHURCH

The Feast of Coronation of Our Lady of Guadalupe will be appropriately celebrated at the Catholic Church, Washington, Sunday, October 10th. There will be High Mass at 9 o'clock. The choir will be directed by Manuel Ortiz. Mary Ortiz will be at the organ. John Avalos and son will accompany the music on the violin. An ex-Captain of the army has volunteered to play the clarionet. In the evening the festival will be concluded with Rosary, Exposition and Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament at 7:30.

Sheriff J. W. Monroe was a visitor in Washington last Wednesday in connection with affairs of his office.

At the Rickard blacksmith shop J. H. Burns is constructing a ditch digger which is of new and practical proportions for use in reclamation districts and orchards under irrigation. Burns has had practical experience in this line of work, having been engaged in it in Stockton for several years. This machine will cost him in the neighborhood of $2500, and if found to be useful in this locality Burns may decide to locate permanently here.

Mike Nicholson, and old friend and crony of Chris Krauett, has been a visitor with the latter during several days of the past week. During many years past they have been steady friends and whenever an opportunity presents itself they make their visits.

M. L. Siebert is the latest addition to West Sacramento, having purchased a home there lately from Miss D. M. Kruger. The home is a modern bungalow of six rooms, with electric lights, water, bath and other conveniences. The price is said to be $2700, and a similar home in Sacramento of equal distatnce from the Postoffice could not be bought for less than $4000. Miss Kruger has several more of these bungalows for sale.

Mrs. Frances Aranda, a colored woman, was sent to Woodland last Monday by Judge Barry for ninety days. She was found by Constable Buckingham near the M-street bridge in a hilarious condition as a result of white mule. She didn't give a rap what happened to her.

Forest Stumbo of Natomas was a visitor this week in Washington with friends.

Austin Wilson, who has been seriously ill, is much improved.

White-crowned sparrows are arriving this week from the high Sierras. Numbers have been seen in the brush throughout West Sacramento, and their song is being heard in the forest section. Many of the white-crowned sparrows winter on the Mohave Desert, around Bartsow and Victorville. Others come down into the Sacramento Valley with the first flurries of snow. The white-crowned to the beginner in bird study may look like an English sparrow. It is distinguished, however, by the conspicuous black and white crown stripes.

Peter Ghelfi was operated on last Tuesday at the Sisters' Hospital for appendicitis. He is recovering rapidly.

AUTO ACCIDENTS happen every day. Are you in a position to stand the loss if the car you drive meets with an accident? We can insure you against this loss or any other you may sustain. Edwin R. Pickett, General Insurance. 308 Farmers Bank Bldg., Sacramento. Phone Main 518.

Mrs. Frank Flatbush, who has been visiting at the home of Mrs. Ed. Wilson, has gone to Stockton to be the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Edwin Weiger.

At a recent meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association, Mrs. Mamie Conzetti was elected as a delegate to the Third District Federation to be held in North Sacramento October 15th. Mrs. I. K. Manchester, President of the organization, will also attend as a delegate.

Mrs. E. Newton, resident for many years of Washington and who recently moved to San Francisco, is confined to a hospital at the Bay as the result of a strain of the back from litfing a heavy weight.

Frank Kemler of San Francisco was a visitor last Monday at the home of his sister, Mrs. H. B. Buckingham.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Klefman spent the week-end visiting in San Francisco.

Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Wilson returned Friday to Los Angeles after visiting in Washington.

Mrs. Ed. Lynch has returned to Ione after a visit itwh relatives in Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Lee of Ione spent the week end visiting Mrs. Mamie Conzetti.

R. E. Jennings has sold his place on Fifth street to M. A. Guerro.

Mrs. Lillie Valentine and daughter have returned from spending the week end in San Francisco.

Mrs. Charles F. Noyes left Riverbank Saturday for a visit in Seattle with her sister, Mrs. T. J. Gavin.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Gallup have gone to Modesto, where they will visit their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Gallup.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Lee have returned from a week-end trip to Nevada City and neighboring towns. In Nevada City they were the guests of Mrs. Lee's aunt, Mrs. Annie Landrigan.

Gilbert Egan and Marshall Stockton have returned from a two weeks' encampment of the National Guard at Santa Cruz.

John Borzone has returned to Oakland after a visit with friends here.

J. N. Peterson has gone to Hayden, Ariz., to visit his mother, Mrs. L. Tompson.

SACRAMENTO NORTHERN R. R. EXTENDING TRACKS NEAR VIRDEN PACKING PLANT SITE

SHORTAGE OF YARD ROOM AND MORE ACCOMMODATIONS ARE REASONS GIVEN NOW FOR EXTENSION

Extending southward from the end of the street car line at West Sacramento Headquarters the Sacramento Northern Railroad has built a track for a distance of more than half a mile.

Judging by the amount of material on hand it is apparent that further extensions of this track at least the distance of a mile and perhaps two miles will be made.

At this writing the spur or main line, whichever it is, reaches nearly to Borchers' Dairy.

Speculation has been rife as to the intent or purpose of this extension. Some claim that it means an early start on the Virden packing plant, for there is no doubt a railroad will be necessary when the great piles of building materials are being brought to the site.

Officials of the Sacramento-Northern Railroad explain that the reason for the extension above mentioned is the necessity for storage of cars and loads of rice during the harvest now at hand.

True there has been a great deal of congestion at the several mills and much inconvenience has been caused through lack of storage space, but nevertheless, the extension doesn't seem to warrant building at that locality when available space exists in the vicinity of the mills.

When the roadbed of the Oakland-Antioch was constructed, the West Side Railroad, now defunct, provided for a bed for this railroad. Hence, all that was to be done in extending the tracks was to place the ties on that roadbed.

At any rate the people in West Sacramento are very much alive to any activity of this kind for it means much to the property owners of the district.

EVEN CHICKENS TAKE TO A STIMULANT PERIODICALLY

Mrs. F. Korrel is being seriously blamed by her husband, Frank, and she herself is also lamenting a grave mistake she made last Wednesday.

Mrs. Korrel is an industrious woman and in an effort to reduce the cost of living she has lately put up a great store of fruits, pickles, jams and jellies.

On examining her stores of preserves last Tuesday she found some that had not been capped properly and in consequence had fermented in the containers.

On Wednesday she took those defective containers to her mother's home, Mrs. Betagh, and decided to feed the chickens with the contents. That was in the early forenoon.

Late in the afternoon she again called on her mother to find her in tears. Mrs. Betagh explained that many of her chickens were dead from eating the fermented fruit.

Mrs. Korrel went to the chicken yard and found that her mother was apparently right. Picking up one chicken she found that it was still warm and actually tried to laugh. Examining others she found seventeen in the same condition. She chased them and set the dog on them, a bull dog too, but they laughed back and even fought the bull dog.

From side to side they staggered till the neighbors came and enjoyed the fun. When it came to roosting time they couldn't climb to their perches. They laid on the ground and slept off their jag over night.

Now Frank Korrel is blaming his wife for giving away such powerful stuff when he needed it so much himself, and Mrs. Betagh is rejoicing because she is getting more eggs than she ever before got from those same chickens.

The Sacramento Union says that Commissioner Bliss has made up his mind to stop the sale of white mule.

Bliss is too wise to try anything like that as long as there are cellars and trapdoors and rocks and bottles made of glass.

Everyone at your company went out of their way to make this experience as painless as possible for me. They even delivered the vehicle to my home!"
-- TERI WION

"I recently had bodywork done on my car and I wanted to let you know that I was very pleased with your repair work. My dealings with David and Javier were always very professional and timely. Also, I was very impressed by the fact that my car was washed and cleaned inside when it was ready for me to pick up.
Thanks for being an outstanding company that I can count on when I have car repairs needed."
